

The Roving 'T' is a work in progress. And though we're all looking to have it come together in the end at the common "T"... we're starting off, as far as we can figure, with four distinct and different short term goals. They are... in no particular order...
...yours... whatever it is.

...a way to Be...

...a way to get paid doing what I like...

...a way to introduce Games of Consciousness to the world...

Whether these goals are truly compatible is yet to be determined. We think they are or we wouldn't be doing this. And you must think so too, or you wouldn't be here. Anyway, we're glad you are. Come in, relax, be part of the evolution. And thanks again for joining The Roving 'T'. May the benefits be mutual.

Just a little bit more background before we get started. We three met through an ad placed on Craigslist looking for an editor to give feedback on his academic writings. It sounded interesting, and I needed a little income at the time, so I responded and he contacted me back drawn by the obvious connection in our names.

A few months later, I answered another ad on the same site from an anonymous author who was looking for someone to look at a book of poetry and out-of-body experiences. It sounded like ag's sort of stuff from a somewhat more woo-woo space, plus a little more income couldn't hurt, so I took on that one, too.
