

Let's start by welcoming you on board and getting you up to speed. The Roving 'I', after all, is a collaboration of the four of us...

...three on this side of the words
doing the writing...

...and...

...you on that side of the words
doing the reading...

We'll all meet here... in the middle... where the words change dimension. Where they go from thoughts in our mind... via words on a screen... to thoughts in your mind... where they are right now. That's what reading is all about after all. Getting an idea from here to there... or there to here... depending on where you're sitting. Unfortunately, there is no guarantee the words make the trip without some sort of change in meaning. But we're getting ahead of ourselves.

We four are... in no particular order...

ag... PhD. researcher in the Evolution of Human Consciousness

The Elder... poet and storyteller

David Silverman... free lance writer... editor...

...and...

...You
...we assume you know who you are.